Nicole Kidman dazzles in embellished gown at Producers Guild Awards... before embracing husband Keith Urban as she recycles the gown for G'Day USA ball

By Chloe-lee Longhetti For Daily Mail Australia PUBLISHED: 06:07 GMT, 29 January 2017

Australian actress and Hollywood heavyweight Nicole Kidman always is a picture of elegance on the red carpet. And on Saturday, the 49-year-old beauty stunned in a cream sheer embellished gown that was so beautiful she wore it twice in one night. The mother of four was positively glowing as she attended the 28th Annual Producers Guild Awards in Los Angeles, with rocker husband Keith Urban, who later accompanied her to the G'Day USA ball, nearby in Hollywood.

Picture perfect: The back of the dress featured a split, while jewels featured all over her dress

Nicole Kidman attended the Producers' Guild of America Awards last night in Hollywood and she didn't stint when it came to her look.

It may not be as big an occasion as the Oscars or Golden Globes but Nicole pulled out all the stops in this custom made gown by Prada, one of her go to labels for glamorous red carpet shindigs.

We love the simple cut of this floor length look with its high neck and three quarter length sleeves. It's demure and elegant but not lacking in glitz thanks to all that sparkling embellishment.

Made just for Nicole it's not available to buy online but you can shop Prada's ready-to-wear collection at Net-a-Porter now (right). Or recreate Nicole's timeless ensemble with one of the dresses in our edit below.

Elle Fanning's Sundance Beauty Diary Is an Indie Dream

JANUARY 27, 2017 5:42 PM by MONICA KIM

Elle Fanning is nothing if not utterly charming. Despite her meteoric rise in Hollywood—shifting effortlessly from Somewhere and Sleeping Beauty to The Neon Demon and forthcoming The Beguiled—the 18-year-old actress has somehow managed to maintain a level head and perennially happy-go-lucky attitude. That means a particularly delightful approach, as frequently captured on her Instagram, to style and beauty—a slick of white eye liner, dusty rose hair dye—which easily stole the show at the premiere of Sidney Hall at Sundance Film Festival this week. From impromptu snow angels to second-day ballet buns, here's an inside look at Fanning's whimsical 72 hours in Park City, Utah—or, a master class on how to live your best life.

Day 2! Can never go wrong with a Prada bow tie.

These Are The 12 Best-Dressed Women Of 2016

By Danielle Fowler 16 Dec 2016 09:00

As the year draws to a close, it's important to reflect. And there's no doubt in our mind that it's been an unforgettable year on the fashion front and a surprising one at that.

Trends once considered a fashion faux-pas made an unanticipated return (we're looking at the puffer jacket) and trends once reserved for your unfashionable uncle landed on the runway (we're talking about Christopher Kane's crocs). It was the year luxe athleisure dominated the catwalks and pyjama dressing outside of the bedroom became the norm.

But it was the celebrities who really kept us guessing. From Selena Gomez's style evolution to that red dress donned by Bella Hadid. So in celebration of this year's surprisingly brilliant fashion moments, we chart the 12 best-dressed celebrities of 2016.

Selena Gomez

You may be surprised but listen up. Selena Gomez is 2016's new contender in the style stakes. Through the use of Vetements tracksuits and silky slip dresses, Selena has sartorially smudged away her Disney aesthetic. A frequent red carpet goer, Selena has truly mastered the art of awards dressing.

From her iconic red dress for the screening of Rudderless to her newfound love of pyjama suits, the actress-turned-singer has become one of our go-to style muses this year.

Best fashion moment of 2016

The singer donned a Prada gown to the American Music Awards

Selena proved red is well and truly her colour after making one of her first appearances following a hiatus from music. The 24-year-old donned a Prada gown finished with Cartier earrings to the American Music Awards.

Milla Jovovich In Prada – 'Resident Evil: The Final Chapter' LA Premiere

Milla Jovovich walked the red carpet at the LA premiere of 'Resident Evil: The Final Chapter' on Monday (January 23).

Like Ruby Rose and Rola, who were also there, the actress put overt embellishment to work for her in a pink Prada dressing gown-inspired design accented by what can only be called a gray feather boa.

Unfortunately, the effect translated as rather inexpensive and Milla's heavily rouged makeup only made the style situation less favourable.

The only thing cuter than maternity street style is red carpet maternity style. On one hand, baby bumps are adorable—and arguably the best and happiest accessory you can have—but they can also be a pretty big styling challenge for women aiming to look chic, sleek, and glamorous in the eyes of fans and cameras.

The best looks from the Golden Globes

Full Text:

Hollywood's biggest stars shined bright in one the season's most major trends — sequins — but the gowns weren't of your typical Vegas variety.

Leading the pack was Ruth Negga, whose custom zippered Louis Vuitton number boasted modern-day warrior goddess. Sarah Paulson's bold-shouldered gown by Marc Jacobs was a chic nod to fashion's return to the '80s (yes, you read that right), while "The Crown" darling Claire Foy's chose a belted Erdem creation — whipped up from the sweetest pink hue, it proved you don't need a crown to be considered royalty.

Speaking of pink, the color of the year should've earned its own Globe as the night's winning hue. Zoe Saldana's romantic, bow-topped Gucci gown coolly oozed sartorial success, while nominee Lily Collins' major Zuhair Murad Couture lace ball gown was the perfect princess moment the Globes' red carpet calls for.

The emergence of yellow was a surprising color story: From Emily Ratajkowski's bombshell moment in Reem Acra to Natalie Portman's mod embellished Prada gown, an homage to Jackie O — the character who earned her this year's Best Actress nomination — the sunny shade was a warm welcome.

Red carpet heavy-hitters with a history of making the "best dressed" list dabbled in another of the season's more playful trends: the cut-out shoulder. Between Nicole Kidman's ethereal Alexander McQueen gown, Drew Barrymore's boho Monique Lhuillier dress and Sofia Vergara's sexpot Zuhair Murad Couture number, they all perfectly played into that nonchalant, dust-off-your-shoulder, I'm-a-superstar moment.

She may add a second Golden Globe to her extensive trophy collection by the end of the night.

But Jessica Chastain already won at the 74th Annual Golden Globe Awards as she stunned on Sunday's red carpet in a powder blue Prada gown.

The 39-year-old actress opted for a classic look for the celeb-studded event in Beverly Hills, where she is nominated for best performance by an actress in a motion picture.

The unique designer dress featured a wide band cinched in her waist, showing off every inch of the Lawless actress's enviable figure.

With straps that hung off her shoulders and bedazzled floral embellishments, Chastain's dress gave an old Hollywood starlet vibe.

FASHIONISTA

THE 29 BEST DRESSED MEN AND WOMEN OF 2016

Full Text:

Looking back at the standout red carpet moments of 2016, we noticed a shift towards experimentation, with many celebrities and their stylists pushing the envelope, embracing the streetwear movement and committing more fully than ever to a unique #aesthetic. In other words: People seemed less afraid to be themselves. They say fashion is a reflection of the times, and while the times were basically garbage this year, there were some pretty damn good clothes.

We saw Celine Dion undergo a thrilling fashion makeover under Zendaya's stylist Law Roach, while "Loving" actress Ruth Negga established herself as the year's breakout style star (with some competition from Gucci muse Soko). Meanwhile, Kristen Stewart somehow got even cooler, Lady Gaga chilled out a little and Jaden Smith proved he's never met a statement coat he didn't like.

Read on for those whom we felt were the best dressed men and women of 2016, along with some of their best red carpet moments. Think we missed someone? Feel free to tell us in the comments below.

Uns gefallen an dem Look aber eh die federnbesetzten Säume am besten: Hingucker-Elemente, die nicht aufdringlich wirken, ganz im Stil der asiatischen Zurückhaltung.
